

Table of contents

Foreword: of bullets and churches	xi
Chapter 1: Hercules, Leviathan or Promotheus?	1
1.1 The age of ecology	2
1.2 Democratic institutions and their alternatives	9
1.3 The siting of hazardous waste facilities	17
1.4 Outline of this book; research questions and structure	27
Chapter 2: Knowledge, competition, or dialogue? Institutional variations and their relation to discourses on facility siting.	33
2.1 Discourses on environmental decision-making	34
2.2 The managerial discourse on decision-making	50
2.3 The pluralist discourse on decision-making	57
2.4 The communitarian discourse on decision-making	69
2.5 An agenda for the rest of this book	75
Chapter 3: Hazardous decisions. The problems of hazardous waste, institutional responses and the ideas underlying them	81
3.1 The arrival of hazardous waste problems	82
3.1.1 Introduction	82
3.1.2 Regulations concerning hazardous waste	82
3.1.3 The rest of this chapter	85
3.2 The role of the market, experts and representatives	88
3.2.1 Introduction	88
3.2.2 Shifting discourses and institutional arrangements	89
3.2.3 Institutional developments since 1940	99
3.2.4 Review	111
3.3 The role of the courts	113
3.3.1 Introduction	113
3.3.2 The general place of the courts in government	114
3.3.3 Judicial activism?	119
3.3.4 The authority of the court	123

3.3.5	The issue of standing; what are the boundary rules?	124
3.3.6	Quasi-judicial procedures	127
3.3.7	Costs of judicial and quasi-judicial proceedings	133
3.3.8	Some conclusions	135
3.4	The role of the community	136
3.4.1	Introduction	136
3.4.2	Citizen participation in the pollution control system	138
3.4.3	Citizen participation in land use planning	142
3.4.4	Environmental assessment	146
3.4.5	Some conclusions on citizen participation	155
3.5	Conclusions	158
Chapter 4: The UK: Political control with the benefits of judicial authority?		165
4.1	Seal Sands: linked incinerator proposals	166
4.1.1	Introduction	166
4.1.2	Internal preparations, first contacts with authorities	167
4.1.3	Official procedures	169
4.1.4	The role of various institutions and discourses	177
4.1.5	Some reflections	186
4.2	Newport: an attempt to reject the logic of the planning system	187
4.2.1	Introduction	187
4.2.2	The development of the proposal: private initiative	189
4.2.3	Official procedures start, decisions made	190
4.2.4	Appeal and inquiry	192
4.2.5	A new round and a new inquiry	193
4.2.6	The role of the various institutions and discourses	195
4.2.7	Review	204
4.3	Rotherham: expertise from the local population	206
4.3.1	Introduction	206
4.3.2	Presentation of plans and broad rejection	208
4.3.3	Inquiry	211
4.3.4	The role of the various institutions and discourses	216
4.3.5	Review of the case	224
4.4	Conclusions	226
4.4.1	Introduction	226
4.4.2	Cross case comparison	228
4.4.3	Theoretical feedback	236

Chapter 5: The Netherlands: participation through the court system 245

5.1	North Refinery: an example of the art of ‘gedogen’	246
5.1.1	Introduction	246
5.1.2	Various proposals	247
5.1.3	The art of gedogen	247
5.1.4	The role of various institutions and discourse in this case	257
5.2	Kaliwaal: how to take rational decisions and still end in court	266
5.2.1	Introduction	266
5.2.2	The various proposals made	267
5.2.3	The role of various institutions and discourses	278
5.2.4	Some reflections	288
5.3	Dordrecht: national policy under stress	290
5.3.1	Introduction	290
5.3.2	Formal procedures	292
5.3.3	The role of the various institutions and discourses	298
5.4	Conclusions	299
5.4.1	Introduction	299
5.4.2	Cross case comparison	300
5.4.3	Theoretical feedback	303

Chapter 6: Canada: Community-based siting 313

6.1	Alberta: the development of an innovative approach to siting	314
6.1.1	Introduction	314
6.1.2	The genesis of invitational siting	315
6.1.3	Invitational siting is redesigned and applied, twice	318
6.1.4	Developments after facility construction	323
6.1.5	The role of the various institutions and discourses	326
6.1.6	Review	337
6.2	Manitoba: competition between rural and urban communities	338
6.2.1	Introduction	338
6.2.2	The development of a siting approach	338
6.2.3	Actual siting discussions	342
6.2.4	The role of various institutions	348
6.2.5	The role of discourse	352
6.2.6	Review of the case	356
6.3	Deep River: Low-level radioactive wastes	356
6.3.1	Introduction	356
6.3.2	The solution to the low-level waste problem	357

6.3.3	Implementation	360
6.3.4	The role of various institutions and discourses	369
6.3.5	Review of the case	377
6.4	Conclusions	379
6.4.1	Introduction	379
6.4.2	Cross case comparison	380
6.4.3	Theoretical feedback	385
Chapter 7: Comparison of case studies. Institutions, discourses, actors, and decision quality in the nine cases		391
7.1	Introduction	392
7.2	The institutions involved	394
7.2.1	Introduction: private sector versus other institutions	394
7.2.2	Elected representatives	395
7.2.3	The role of experts	396
7.2.4	The role of the courts	398
7.2.5	The role of the community	400
7.3	The actors involved	401
7.3.1	Introduction	401
7.3.2	The role of experts	401
7.3.3	The role of market parties	404
7.3.4	Politicians	406
7.3.5	Voters	409
7.3.6	Parties to a court case	415
7.3.7	Members of the community	418
7.4	The role of discourse	421
7.4.1	Introduction	421
7.4.2	The presence of various discourses	422
7.4.3	The consequences of the use of discourses	426
7.5	The quality of decisions	431
7.5.1	Introduction	431
7.5.2	Technical rationality	431
7.5.3	The economic quality of the proposals	434
7.5.4	The social quality of the decisions	436
7.5.5	The political quality of the decisions	439
7.5.6	Overall assessment of quality: patterns?	441
7.6	The interest-discourse divide	444
7.7	Conclusions	445
7.7.1	Introduction	445
7.7.2	Conclusions within the theoretical framework	445

Table of contents	ix
7.7.3 Some conclusions about the theoretical framework	447
Chapter 8: Summary and conclusions	451
8.1 Introduction	452
8.2 The collective choice level: institutionalization	453
8.3 The concrete choice level: siting debates	458
8.4 Remarks about discourse analysis	463
8.5 Implications for environmental decision-making	466
8.5.1 Introduction	466
8.5.2 The practice of hazardous waste siting	467
8.5.3 The practice of environmental decision-making	471
References	479
Appendix 1: List of interviewees	489
Appendix 2: Explanation of case selection	497
About the author	501